BIBLE AND THE OUTSIDER

Hay, J. Charles		Inter Church Committee for Refugees		BOOK
-----------------	--	-------------------------------------	--	------	--

The author writes out of anger, experience, and solidarity with refugees. His anger is directed at those who quote selected verses of the Bible to justify a position or belief without understanding or acknowledging the full context of their quotations. This misrepresents the Bible and misleads the faithful.

CHRISTIAN MISSIONS AND THE JUDGEMENT OF GOD

SECOND EDITION

Paton, David Macdonald		Wm. B. Eerdmans Publishing Co., 1996		BOOK
------------------------	--	--------------------------------------	--	------	--

David Macdonald Paton served ten years as a missionary in China. He raises a number of crucial issues that remain essential for our understanding of China, of Chinese Christianity, and of the church ecumenical. In a day that seems fixated solely on church growth numbers, this timely republication of Paton's 1953 work speaks more clearly than ever to the need for developing a missiology that focuses instead on the creation of self-sustaining indigenous churches.

GOD FOR THE WORLD - CHURCH FOR THE WORLD:

THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH IN TODAY'S WORLD

Guthrie, Shirley C.

Witherspoon Press, 2001

BOOK

Dr. Guthrie explores the nature of mission and the work of the PC(USA) in fulfilling its call to mission. He builds on the fact that members of congregations believe that the church has a mission and that they want to know more about it, to study it, and most of all, to participate in it. In six sessions he provides them with a tool for developing this kind of understanding.

MISSION SYMPHONY

NOTES FOR THE THIRD MILLENNIUM

Chapman, William E. Witherspoon Press BOOK

In his latest work, Reverend Chapman explores the third chapter of The Book of Order (G-3.000), The Church and its Mission. Comparing it to Schubert's eighth symphony, commonly known as the "Unfinished," the author notes that mission is "what Christians do." Mission is our response to God's call in Christ . . . a call that persists throughout time and so is never complete. In his Program Notes, Rev. Chapman explains that each of us, as a believer, is thus a player in this great symphony. The audience for our symphony is an audience of one: God. The same God is also the conductor, always working to improve our performance.
